My dear Mr. Sewall
I received your kind letter of 10th Some duty to hand. I have been trying to get a chance to visit Springfield and see you for a long time but I have been more of a slave than ever the last year. I visited you the last time I was in Springfield to stop and saw Susan Willard then for the last time I expected then to see him again a good many times. Although his death has not been written I expected the news of it came upon us suddenly at last when we returned from Newport where we have been for a few days visiting Nelly. He of course did not get the Springfield papers. I will be glad to
